

Lockdown Frenzy

Boris Johnson had announced,
So, all the children had sprung up and pounced,
Until we all realised,
We'd have to be disguised,
With thick, tight cloths around our mouths.

Oh, what a lovely surprise it was,
All the extraordinary stuff we could do,
No school no rules,
And many exciting things to do,
We can go out and play, hooray!
But no, stay at home they say.

Abruptly everything had changed.
No holidays, no going far away, all plans ruined,
All your favourite shops are closed,
And no going out, you're told.
Sanitise and wear your masks,
All you must do is follow these easy tasks,
Please just do what we ask, to keep you safe.

School work is getting harder and harder,
Parents and teachers are stressing too,
Even pens and pencils feel the pressure and are crying 'Boo hoo!'

No one outside,
Only people going for walks,
It's Surprisingly quiet,
Everyone on their gadgets no family time to be seen,
While others are on their balcony watching seasons change from the inside.

No birthdays anywhere,
Just people staying at home and relaxing,
Birthday cakes on the table,
And blowing out the candles just me and my family,
It'll be gone before Christmas...I hope.
